KERMAN

Is neither a gamble nor an experiment, nor anything else that may or may not pay out.

KERMAN is a certainty, a country already producing abundantly, a community long since through the experimental stage, providing absolute safety for homeseeker and investor, supporting now hundreds of prosperous farmers and their families.

KERMAN has a productive soil, a producing climate, and plenty of cheap water for irrigation—a combination that cannot fail to produce wealth for the farmer, if he does his share—AND IT DOES.

KERMAN produced the first full carload of peaches shipped from the San Joaquin valley in 1911.

KERMAN orchards and vineyards the past season produced hundreds of tons of raisins, dried peaches and apricots, besides enormous quantities of green fruit and grapes shipped for table and canning purposes.

BIG PRODUCTION BEING MADE BY WHITE CAPS

Special to the Bonanza

MANHATTAN, August 26.—Persons who may have wondered at the productive capacity of the White Caps mine, if residents of Manhattan, should take a stroll up the gulch, or if not residents should come here for the purpose, and take an observation of a couple of great gashes in the surface, from whence the 50 tons a day have come all through the past spring and summer to keep the Associated mill running three shifts every day.

If this were an established and developed mine in a mining camp of a like stage of development, it would not be remarkable nor out of the ordinary. But the mill enterprise was undertaken before the present owners of the White Caps lease had secured it and virtually no development had been done, save the blocking out of the ore exposed by sinking a shaft down to the 165-foot level, with one or two laterals of comparatively less proportions. The result is that Superintendent J. J. McCarthy has been pounded on the back for ore for the mill when called upon for ore faster than compatible with the ability of any force that could be used toward blocking out known bodies, not to mention searching for new ones.

During the past few days the slope from the east drift reached the surface a few feet beyond the old east shaft. And here is where the great tonnage of the past several weeks has come from. The bulk of it has been stowed from the 75-foot level to the surface, running it down to the 165-foot level in the raise that meets the shaft, from whence it is taken by cars to the main shaft and hoisted.

The body of ore there is large, averaging anywhere from 4 to 12 feet in width. Recently at the extreme eastern point a step fault was encountered and traced out. At present ent the ore in it is larger and better than ever, being 12 feet wide in some places and probably more in others.

The general average value of the ore in that vicinity is around $30 a ton, so it is understood. Samples taken across the ledge in various places have run from that figure up to $40.

But when it comes to size it is the ore body after it reaches the 165 at the point under the east shaft. It is larger there than any known place in the mine, which means that it is 30 feet wide.

A couple of shipments from the 230 level were made and found to mill as well as the general average above. The ore there is proving wider than thought and thus far there has been no chance on account of not finding both walls to put in stulls for safety.
